

Midway with Mifos

My GCI experience with the company (midway)

Introduction

My name is Rohan Bhasin, I am 14 years old and I am love to program. I am also an avid writer, having run my own blog about Deep Learning.

My GCI experience kick started when my friend told be about the Competition. The Google Code Code is a great platform where young devs can get hands on real life project experiencing by completing tasks.

As of now , only some time into the competition I've completed a variety of tasks ranging from Outreach Writing to Coding and Interacting With people. It has certainly been a roller coaster.I've also managed to win a shirt :)

Appreciation for the GCI & Mifos

The annual GCI has really lifted up my spirits by a huge margin and along with the ingenious idea of Mifos I've really started to understand the whole financial game in rural Areas. I'm also a big fan of the Mifos X developers. An elite dev squad.

While completing tasks in the GCI, I Came across Mifos. To my unexposed brain, I saw this as initiative for the poor (maries) and targeted the financial sector. This program is a must for those people not having enough technological experience and cannot take advantage of e - payments.

It really pushes forward the notion of financial inclusion, an entity that the discriminative world today really requires and Mifos Initiative helps to abridge the gap between this cause by keeping their projects open source so that other developers can contribute to the efficacious cause. They have opened sourced it for developers like us, so it also along with open source contribution lifts up opportunities for upcoming developers.

Conclusion

I read in a Josh Bernoff book to keep my writing short and concise, As for the GCI, it's been going great... I just started on the 27th Of December, so quite late!

To conclude ; A big thanks to the GCI and Mifos
